Vol. 22

Chinook, Alberta, Thursday, Jan. 14th 1913

THE WEEK IN EDMONTON

"All great wars bring with them some sort of spiritual revival, for when we are at war material things must be sacrificed. Money, goods, life itself are doured into the fiery furnace. Men then grope for spiritual things."

Third session of the ninth legislature will open Thursday, February 18, it was announced this week by Premier Aberhart, following a full cabinet meeting. An order-in-council formerly calling the session has been signed. Although he did not forecast the trend of legislative enactments to be brought down, the premier said that it was possible the session would be shorter than usual. Revising of the statutes is proceeding and for that reason the number of bills introduced will be kept as low as possible. One extra legislative difficulty that cut of town members will have to face is the housing shortage. Already they are seeking accommodation, and Edmonton has practically no accommodation these days.

Intending purchasers of chicks are advised to place their orders direct by mail, phone, or personally with the hatchery or breeder from whom they wish to secure their chicks, either in Alberta or outside of the province. If you so desire you may place with your local hatcheryman for outside chicks and have them shipped direct to you, thus saving delay through reshipment. We repeat that purchasers of chicks are not prevented from procuring their chick requirements from any approved hatchery or approved breeder in Canada, but we do advise you to place your order without delay.

DKUMHELLER, Jan. 12
The Hi-grade mine at Drumheller was closed when 175 men went on strike.

The management reported that the cause of the strike was the firing of a man for disobedience to orders.

The miners were demanding the reinstatement of the man claiming that he had been illegally fired, since according to government regulations he should have received seven days' notice. They said they would not return to work until he had been reinstated. District officers have been summoned from Calgary, and a conference will be held. The mine is two months behind on its orders.

Mr. E. T. Ind, Binscarth, Manitoba, is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. C. Bayley.

The warm spell which hit Chinook last week has continued throughout this week. In fact, a driving rain hit the district Tuesday morning but as we go to press, the roads are very icy.

Mr. Gordon Wilson who has been in Calgary for some time, returned to his home this week.

NOTICE

The Annual Meeting of the Ratepayers of the Chinook Consolidated S. D. No. 16, will be held in the School at 1:30 p. m., on Saturday, January 23rd for the purpose of discussing the affairs of the district and for electing trustees for Crocus and Carpathia districts.

CHAPTER II.

THE four men turned and followed Andre Ribott out of the cafe. Were they not Kahiri, Storey would have agreed that the quartet was the guard of the fat little Frenchman. But the Kahiri were not native to Algeria. They were found only in Tripolitania, on the other side of the Libyan border, fierce Berbers who acknowledged the rule of neither Italian nor Senegal. Why should those wild men, as dreamed as their cousins the Touaregs, be in Ain Safa obeying the orders of the equally despised French?

"The Kahiri intend to attack us when we leave the cafe," murmured Mohammed. "The whisper went through the coffee house that Ismeddin the Lawless had come to take from Sidi Storey the money obtained from the sale of many sheep."

"You have your gun, Mohammed?" Storey asked.

The shepherd nodded, and a grin stirred through his beard. "I have a knife, also," he grunted. "The sidi intends to fight. Why should we kill any of them we shall have to leave town on the heels of the French?"

"What is written is written," remarked Storey. "As soon as that waiter shows up we'll lock horns with Ismeddin and his desert gangsters."

A moment later the thin-faced waiter shuffled to the edge of the table. Storey smiled. "Thanks for the warning. Who prepared that supposed wine card for you?"

"A strange woman, monsieur," answered the waiter. "She intercepted me in the kitchen and offered me a handful of francs to show you, in such a manner that the other man would suspect nothing, what she had written on the card."

"What did she look like?"

"She was young. More than that I cannot say, since she was covered from head to foot in a dark banyan. She was gone when I returned to the kitchen, but I think she was a girl of the Roumi—a Franzavil."

STOREY tipped his waiter and dismissed him. "That was a four-sided drama, with parts seemingly unrelated. What connection could there be between Andre Ribott securing meat for Hungry France; Kahiri Storey trekking across the desert to return of his native land; the fierce Berbers from Tripolitania and this unknown girl who had come out of nowhere?"

"Shall we go, Mohammed?" suggested Storey.

The shepherd loosened his cloak, exposing belted knife and gun, rose with Storey and stepped with his friend and former employer to the door and out of the cafe.

"Let us go this way, sidi," Mohammed ibn Mulai took the lead. "It is longer, but in a direction where the enemy are least liable to be lying in ambush."

The course of the shepherd was the sanest procedure. Yet as he moved the wate of his cloak-shrouded companion Kahiri Storey half-wished that the encounter with Ismeddin or Ribott would be his last. Mohammed led him safely through the tortuous streets to the hotel and they were able to steal undetected out of Ain Safa, which was undoubtedly the next step on the shepherd's program, the American might leave Africa with all this mystery unexplained.

Relieves distress from MONTHLY FEMALE WEAKNESS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only helps relieve monthly pain but also restores normal feeling—due to monthly functional disturbances. It helps build resistance against distress of "dainty days." Made in Canada.

MOHAMMED stopped so suddenly that Storey's foot struck against the slippery heel of the guide. The Muslim was peering ahead into the gloom. "Did you hear anything, sidi?" he whispered.

The street had narrowed to such an extent that jutting balconies of opposing buildings had transformed the thoroughfare into a tunnel. Out of the darkness came the rattle of a loose cobblestone. Mohammed flattered against the nearest wall, and then the shadows under the balconies condensed into darker shapes, a blot of men moving through the street.

"The Kahiri!" Mohammed whirled silently in his tracks, dragging at the cloak of Storey. "Hurry, sidi, before they see us."

At the first winding corner the street became another place of shadows. Again Mohammed slid to a halt. Before they snarled oath could announce that they were trapped, silent figures had leaped beside Storey and the shepherd, daggers whipping from scabbards.

Mohammed had jerked out his own knife to block the bludge that slashed at his throat. A hurtling body rammed against Storey as he attempted to draw his gun. Another Berber, jamming Storey against the building, and over the sprawled man a knife rose. But before the pursuer could find flame he was through the darkness and the man with the dagger collapsed beside Storey.

A heavy flung the clinging Kahiri clear, and as the American struggled to his feet a hand gripped his torn sleeve. "Come, Monsieur Storey!" shouted a tense whisper in his ear. "Come with me!"

STOREY had a momentary glimpse of a small dark-eyed face under the hood of a robe that blended with the shadows into the slight figure was drawing him. Voice and form had been those of a woman, but the strength in the hand that clutched him was so near to being masculine that Storey found himself clear of the milling Kahiri and in a passage between buildings before he could check his would-be rescuer.

"Don't stop!" urged the girl, tugging at his arm. "If you are captured, monsieur, it means your death—"

"But—Mohammed—!" By main force Storey freed his arm. "I can not leave him—he is in danger, too—"

"Monsieur—" Again the girl in the banyan caught at him. This time Storey could not break her clinging hold, but in spite of her hampering efforts, he gained the mouth of the passage.

The number of men in the street seemed to have increased. Storey's commands had broken the silence. There was a light, also, gleaming not on knife-blades but on the duller metal of rifle-barrels.

"Qui vive?" A rifle, held by barrel and stock, slammed against the chest of Storey, pressing him against the wall. Two of the soldiers were holding the girl in the dark robe. The leader of the squad was kneeling beside a crumpled form on the cobblestones—the man who had been shot, while attempting to knife Kahiri Storey.

The sergeant of police arose. "Shot through the head," he announced. He glanced disinterestedly at Storey, then stooped again to pick up two pistols—the gun that had been knocked from Storey's grasp in the fight with the Berbers—and one other weapon.

Other than the one dead Kahiri, the soldiers and the prisoners, the street was empty. Ismeddin and his followers had disappeared. Gone, too, was Mohammed ibn Mulai.

THE sergeant, finding that one of the pistols had been fired, pocketed the guns, then stepped closer to Storey. "Why did you kill this man?" he demanded in Arabic, then, getting a better look at Storey's features, he shifted suddenly to French. "Mon Dieu! You are European—"

"Good thing you got here, Sergeant," grinned Storey. "Another five minutes and those Berbers might have proven too much for us."

"Berbers?" The sergeant stared blankly, then glanced up and down the deserted street. "There is only one man here. We saw no one else except you and this girl and the man you killed."

The girl spoke. "There were at least six others, monsieur. They must have fled when they heard you coming. It was I who sent you in the message informing you that a man in the cafe of Amar ben Yusuf was in danger."

"It seems that we came too late to save him," commented the sergeant. "Monsieur—mademoiselle, you are both under arrest."

He—"Have you ever loved and lost?"

She—"No, the jury awarded me $100,000 heart balm."

"Conductor, will you help me off the train?"

"Sure, but why?"

"You see, I'm stout and have to get off the train backward. The porter thinks I'm trying to get on and he gives me a shove on again. I'm five stations past my destination now!"

Shopkeeper (angrily)—What's the idea of throwing those shoes away?

New Assistant—They're no good. I've tried 'em on six customers and they don't fit any size.

Small boy, looking into dentist's showcase—Mummy, if I had to have false teeth I'd take that pair.

Murphy—Hush, James, haven't I told you it's rude to pick your teeth in public.

A girl met an old dame who had turned her down, and decided to high-tail him. "Sorry," she murmured when the hostess introduced him to her. "I didn't get your name."

"I know you didn't," replied the ex-boy friend, "but you certainly tried hard enough."

Minister—Rastus, this is the first time I have seen you at church for a long time. I'm mighty glad to see you here.

Rastus—I had to come, parson. I needs strengthening. I've got a job whitewashin' a chicken coop.

The old-fashioned farmer was hard to convince. "No," declared he. "I'll have no such contraption in my house. Planners are bad things."

"Oah, but father," protested his daughter, "this is an upright piano."

Johnny (buying ticket in railroad station)—I want a ticket to New York.

Clerk—Would you care to go by Buffalo?

Johnny—I don't know. I've never ridden one.

"Look here, Mrs. Murphy, why have you been hitting my little Bobby?"

"I only hit him because he was rude and called me a fat old pig."

"But, good gracious, Mrs. Murphy, you ought to know better than that. Hitting my son won't do you any good; you'll have to start dieting!"

The country vicar in England was nailing some trelliswork up in his garden, when he chanced to look up and saw a London evacuee boy watching him. With a pleasant smile, he said:

"Well, my little man, are you interested in woodwork?"

"Not me, guv'nor," replied the boy. "I'm just waitin' to 'ear what a parson says when 'e 'its 'is thumb!"

SELECTED RECIPES

ANOTHER "SUGAR-SAVER"

Imperial Chocolate Cake (2 eggs or 3 egg yolks)

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake flour

1 teaspoon soda

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup butter or other shortening

1/2 cup sugar

1/2 cup corn syrup or honey

2 eggs or 3 egg yolks, unswartened

2 to 3 squares Baker's unsweetened chocolate, melted

3/4 cup milk

1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add soda and salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream thoroughly; then add syrup or honey gradually and beat well. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each; then add chocolate and blend. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased, deep 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 minutes, or until done; or bake in greased pan, 13 x 9 x 2 inches, 35 minutes, or until done.

A Clever Detective

Was Doubly Successful In Hunt For Young Heiress

A lawyer came to London to locate a young woman who had fallen heir to a large fortune. The police were called in to aid in the search, and placed the case in the hands of a clever and personable young detective. Several weeks passed by without any information, and the lawyer was beginning to feel deeply concerned over the matter, when the young detective appeared and smilingly informed him he had located the heiress.

"Where is she?" asked the lawyer.

"At my place," replied the detective. "I married her yesterday."

A BANKER'S MISTAKE

A member of a Ladies' Aid Society in a small town went to the bank to deposit, as she told the banker, "some old money."

Unfortunately the banker thought she said "egg money," and replied: "Blessed be! I don't know what old hens are doing these days?"

Then he couldn't understand why the woman gathered up her pass-book and hurried from the bank!

What Shall We Do About It?

In our last article an attempt was made to stress the permanent damage being done to our farm lands by erosion, and the urgent necessity of undertaking corrective measures. We promised to offer a few suggestions.

We believe that the Dominion Government should outline and announce a long-term soil conservation scheme at the earliest possible date. The problem will never solve itself, and it will never be solved by year to year expedients.

It is probable that the good, reasonably level land on the open plains can be devoted to grain farming almost indefinitely, and soil drifting controlled by strip farming and good tillage practices. In the park and wooded areas, where both soil drifting and water erosion are doing serious damage, grasses and clovers must play an important part in any effective conservation programme.

Obviously, any scheme must recognize the differences in farming conditions between the open prairies and the park and wooded areas.

Too many of us think of forage crops only in terms of markets for livestock. This is a secondary consideration. The soil must be preserved. If forage payments are to be made in 1943, we suggest that greater encouragement be given to grasses and clovers in specified areas. You say where is the seed coming from? I reply, from whence will it come in five years time if we don't start now?

Ask your local live elevator agent for a leaflet dealing more fully with this subject.

Farm Paper Announcement Novel New Contest

The Family Herald and Weekly Star, long renowned for its unique and entertaining competitions, is at the present time featuring a new, $600.00 Prize Contest that promises to attain well-deserved popularity throughout the length and breadth of the country. The prize list is an attractive one embodying 100 prizes with leading awards of $200.00, $100.00 and $50.00.

Called "Fun on the Farm", this Contest might best be described as a pictorial word building game in which the contestant completes certain words pertaining to farm objects, situations or actions, then uses the letters of these words to build up other words represented in the puzzle pictures. The object is to use up as many letters of the original words as possible.

In presenting this Contest, the Family Herald renders a valuable service in the field of home entertainment. These days, the average person has few dollars available for recreation and amusement, yet, to offset the strains of wartime living, recreation is needed more than ever. The Family Herald hopes that this new Contest will help brighten the long winter evenings for all who seek recreation and profit in puzzles.

The first puzzle appeared in the issue of December 16, but there's still time to start. Arrangements have been made to supply back puzzles to those who did not get in at the beginning.
